Purpose of the PAIA manual

This guide to accessing records held by Indequity is intended to provide guidelines to members of the public who wish to exercise their constitutional right to access to information.

Below is information on how to lodge a request, a description of the types of records that will be made available, grounds for refusal, what procedure will be followed in considering a request, the applicable fee payment process and information on the appeals procedure should the outcome of a request not satisfy the requester.

Introduction

Indequity conducts business as a Financial Services Provider, registered with the Financial Sector Conduct Authority (FSCA). Our FSCA licence number is 20603.

The Promotion of Access to Information Act, No. 2 of 2000 (“the Act”) gives effect to the constitutional right of access to any information in records held by private bodies that is required for the exercise or protection of any rights. The Act grants a requester access to records of a private body, if the record is required for the exercise or protection of any rights. If a public body lodges a request, the public body must be acting in the public interest. The Act sets out the requisite procedural issues attached to a request for access to information, the requirements which such request must meet as well as the grounds for refusal or partial refusal of such request.

This manual informs requesters of procedural and other requirements which requests must meet as prescribed by the Act.

The Act recognises that the right to access to information cannot be unlimited and should be subject to justifiable limitations, including, but not limited to limitations aimed at the reasonable protection of privacy, commercial confidentiality, and effective, efficient and good governance in a manner which balances that right with any other rights, including such rights contained in the Bill of Rights in the Constitution.

General security measures implemented by the responsible party to ensure the confidentiality, integrity and availability of the information

To safeguard personal information, Indequity has implemented various state of the art security measures and ensures these are maintained and upgraded.

The following need to be considered before submission of a request for information:

Is the request submitted to exercise or protection of a requester's legitimate rights?

The exercise of a requester's rights is subject to justifiable limitations, including the reasonable protection of privacy, commercial confidentiality, and effective, efficient and good governance. This legislation may not be used for access to a record for criminal or civil proceedings or requested after the commencement of such proceedings.

Is the information under the control of Indequity?

The Act only applies to records that have already been created, at the date of the request, and that are under the control of Indequity. Indequity is not obliged to retrieve any records on behalf of a requester that are no longer under its control, even where Indequity created the record.

Does the requester have a legitimate right to access the record?

A request may only be made to exercise a requester's own right, or where the request is made on behalf of another person, the requester must submit proof of their capacity to act on behalf of the person in whose name the request is made.

Grounds for refusal of access to records

The main grounds for Indequity to refuse a request for information relates to the:

- mandatory protection of the privacy of a third party who is a natural person, which would involve the unreasonable disclosure of personal information of that natural person;
- mandatory protection of the commercial information of a third party, if the record contains:
 - trade secrets of that third party;
 - financial, commercial, scientific or technical information which disclosure could likely cause harm to the financial or commercial interests of that third party;
 - information disclosed in confidence by a third party to Indequity, if the disclosure could put that third party at a disadvantage in negotiations or commercial competition;
- mandatory protection of confidential information of third parties if it is protected in terms of any agreement;
- mandatory protection of the safety of individuals and the protection of property;
- mandatory protection of records which would be regarded as privileged in legal proceedings;
- the commercial activities of Indequity, which may include:
 - trade secrets of Indequity;
 - financial, commercial, scientific or technical information which disclosure could likely cause harm to the financial or commercial interests of Indequity;
 - information which, if disclosed could put Indequity at a disadvantage in negotiations or commercial competition; and
 - a computer program which is owned by Indequity, and which is protected by copyright.

Requests for information that are clearly frivolous or vexatious, or which involve an unreasonable diversion of resources shall be refused.

Internal remedies

Indequity does not have internal appeal procedures. As such, the decision made by the Information Officer is final, and requesters will have to exercise such external remedies at their disposal if the request for information is refused, and the requester is not satisfied with the answer supplied by the Information Officer.

External remedies

Subject to the provisions of the Act, a requester that is dissatisfied with the Information Officer's refusal to disclose information, may within 180 days of notification of the decision, apply to a court for relief. Likewise, a third party dissatisfied with the Information Officer's decision to grant a request for information, may within 180 days of notification of the decision, apply to a court with appropriate jurisdiction for relief.

Request procedure

The following procedural requirements serve as guidelines for requesters. The requester must also comply with all the procedural requirements contained in the Act relating to the request for access to a record.

- The requester must complete the prescribed form and submit same as well as payment of a request fee and a deposit, if applicable, to the Information Officer at the postal or physical address or email address as stated above;
- The prescribed form must be filled in with enough particularity to at least enable the Information Officer to identify:
 - The record or records requested;
 - The identity of the requester, with appropriate proof of the fact (and if an agent is lodging the request, proof of capacity);
 - The address and contact details of the requester;
 - Which form of access is required, if the request is granted;
- The requester must state the nature of the right for which access to the requested records is required. The courts have indicated that access to the records must be "necessary" for the exercise or protection of the right so stated;
- Subject to the provisions in the Act in respect of extensions, Indequity will process the request within 30 days if granted, unless the requester has stated special reasons which would satisfy the Information Officer that circumstances dictate that the above time periods not be complied with;
- The requester shall be informed in writing whether access has been granted or denied. If, in addition, the requester requires the reasons for the decision in any other manner, he must state the manner and the particulars so required;
- If a request is made on behalf of another person, then the requester must submit proof of the capacity in which the requester is making the request to the reasonable satisfaction of the Information Officer;
- If an individual is unable to complete the prescribed form because of illiteracy or disability, such a person may make the request orally.

A fee for a copy of the PAIA manual, as contemplated in annexure B of the Regulations, shall be payable per each A4-size photocopy made.

The requester must pay the prescribed fees before any further processing can take place.

If a deposit has been paid in respect of a request for access, which is refused, then the Information Officer concerned will repay the deposit to the requester.

Access to records held by Inequity

- Records held by Inequity may be accessed by requests only once the prerequisite requirements for access have been met;
- A requester is any person making a request for access to a record of Inequity. There are two types of requesters:

Personal Requester

- A personal requester is a requester who is seeking access to a record containing personal information about the requester;
- Subject to the provisions of the Act and applicable law, Inequity will provide the requested information, or give access to any record about the requester's personal information. The prescribed fee for reproduction of the information requested will be charged.

Other Requester

- This requester (other than a personal requester) is entitled to request access to information on third parties. However, Inequity is not obliged to grant access. The requester must fulfil the prerequisite requirements for access in terms of the Act, including the payment of a request and access fee.

Decision

- Inequity will, within 30 days of receipt of the request, decide whether to grant or decline the request and give notice with reasons (if required) to that effect;
- The 30-day period within which Inequity has to decide whether to grant or refuse the request, may be extended for a further period of not more than 30 days if the request is for a large number of information, or the information cannot reasonably be obtained within the original 30-day period. Inequity will notify the requester in writing should an extension be sought.
